A local business man who was born in another Ohio county, recently sent a letter to the officials of the county in which he was born, to obtain his birth certificate.

Friday he finally received a certificate after the records had been consulted, and he found that the names of his parents were not recorded correctly, the date of his birth was not correct, and that he was listed as a female.

A series of affidavits and the usual red tape were gone through with before the man finally obtained the birth certificate.

A short time ago while visiting a friend who had excavated a small mound on a farm near Bainbridge, I examined the Indian relics, or Moundbuilders (they were all Indians) relics taken from the little tumulus.

In addition to several earpools such as the Moundbuilders wore for ornaments, and a few other articles, there was a chunk of rich lead ore that was as large as a man's fist.

It is not the first lead ore that I have seen that came from mounds in Ohio, although so far as known no lead of such richness is found closer than one place in Kentucky and southern Missouri.

The finding of obsidian (volcanic glass) artifacts in many mounds, as well as other materials, has proven beyond all doubt that there was considerable commerce between the tribes of Indians, and it is not only possible but highly probable that the lead came from Missouri 400 miles or more distant, and the obsidian from the Rocky Mountains.

Likewise the large amount of copper used by the Moundbuilders probably came from the upper peninsula of Michigan, and was widely distributed in the area of the Moundbuilders in North America.

That reminds me that the chief reason for excavating mounds is to learn more of the early race of Americans who populated this country long before Columbus landed on the east coast.

The strawberry season in Fayette County is nearing the end, and the crop this year was shorter than usual in most areas.

The local market price for home grown strawberries ran as high as 60 cents per quart, with much of the offering very ordinary in quality.

SUPPLY WILL BE LOW
ON LIVESTOCK FEED

Corn, Oats and Barley Are Grains To Be Short

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—American stocks of corn, oats and barley — major livestock feed grains—July 1 are expected by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics to be the smallest for that date since 1937, when the country had to import large quantities of grain to help meet shortages caused by the drought of 1936.

In a report on the livestock feed situation, the Bureau said July 1 supplies of these grains would total only between 18,000,000 and 20,000,000 tons.

Present short grain supplies reflect heavy use by a war-expanded livestock industry. Because reserves of feed have been virtually depleted, farmers are reducing livestock numbers, particularly hogs and poultry.

CHILDREN AWARDED $1,500
FOR FALL FROM ELEPHANT

COLUMBUS, June 3.—(AP)—Two children who fell from an elephant's back three years ago in Brookside Park at Cleveland yesterday won $1,500 damages.

The state supreme court ruled in their favor after the court of appeals reversed a common pleas court decision awarding them the damages in a suit against the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, owner of the animal.

The children are Audrey and George Newman. They were knocked from the elephant's back when the animal became frightened and bolted into the elephant house.

Exemption from Night Club Tax Proposed for Men And Women in Service

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—The Truman Committee was asked today to broaden its probe of war production contracts by demanding that the army and navy produce the names of all companies whose agreements with the military forces may be terminated or cut-back in the next six months.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.), member of the Truman group, made the request following the navy's cancellation of fighter plane contracts with the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation.

G. I. Tax Loophole? From Senator George (D-Ga.), chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, came a suggestion that might mean another break for men and women in uniform. George thinks they should be allowed to claim exemption from the stiff night club tax merely by signing their names and service serial numbers on the bills. The problem came up in a measure to cut the cabaret levy from 30 to 20 percent—and to raise the public debt limit from $210,000,000,000 to $360,000,000,000.

Convention Recess It looks like a sound guess that Congress will knock off work in a couple of weeks until after the Democratic and Republican national conventions in Chicago. Most of the legislators are scheduled to attend the political convalescence—and the House Banking Committee has helped their plans along by approving a one-year extension of price control and avoiding a congressional battle over food subsidies.

The committee compromised the issue by ruling the present subsidies on meat, butter and flour may continue, but banned consumer price aids on other food products.

Around The Town

Both Senate and House are in recess until Monday. . . . Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, treasurer of the Republican National Committee, said he wants a "reasonable" limitation on presidential campaign expenditures in wartime, but doubts that the sum could be held to $2,000,000 as suggested by Senator Gillette (D-Ia.). . . . Rep. Brooks (D-La.) put into the congressional record figures showing that American army generals have more men under their command than those of any other fighting force (6,278 men compared to 5,000 for German generals, 2,528 for British and 2,400 for Japanese). . . . service men and women shortly will be able to buy $10 war bonds.

RAF ROCKET SHELLS
SINK NAZI SHIPPING

Eleven Ship Convoy Attacked Successfully

CAIRO, June 3.—(AP)—Rocket-firing RAF Beaufighters have been taking a deadly toll of German shipping in the Aegean for the past six months, the Middle East Air Force disclosed today in announcing a successful attack Thursday on an 11-ship convoy in which the pilots reported many direct hits.

The rocket projectiles "have the hitting power of a six-inch naval gun" when fired from low altitudes, one pilot said. Many Middle East fliers regard the projectiles as more deadly than bombs. Greater accuracy is required, however, and Beaufighters flying close to their targets to launch the explosives often are forced within range of light anti-aircraft guns.

Scores of enemy vessels slinking beneath over-hanging cliffs in small coves and tiny island harbors have been hit by the rocket-equipped Beaufighters, which also have used the new weapon to attack enemy land installations.

Japs Being Mauled
In Burma But China
Threat Is Serious

By DEAN SCHEDLER
(By the Associated Press)

Allied forces in the Asiatic theater of war slashed hard at Japanese forces registering gains in Burma and India while American troops on Biak Island in the Southwest Pacific were getting poised for new thrusts at the enemy.

Americans and Chinese attacking from three sides are making gains within and outside the north Burma Japanese base of Myitkyina. Driving from the northwest one column gained nearly a mile in face of stiff opposition while in the southern part of the town itself, Allied troops inched forward 400 yards.

The Allied communiqué said British Chindit troops killed 700 Japanese before they withdrew from a road block between Hogaung and Myitkyina. This brought the claimed total for the Chindits to at least 3,700 Japanese killed thus far in the Burma campaign.

In a drive to make contact with the Allies in the Myitkyina sector, the Chinese high command announced 20,000 American trained Chinese troops were advancing through rain, mud and mist.

Savage Fighting Reinforced American-Chinese columns fighting their way into Myitkyina from both the north and south have captured large quantities of supplies and ammunition, a headquarters announcement said.

Allied forces pounding into the important rail head city from the south have reached the railway station in hand-to-hand fighting while another column driving down from the north has crashed to the town's edge, said a press note from Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters.

Stilwell's communiqué said Chinese troops in the Salween

FOOD SHIPPED TO ENGLAND
WORTH BILLIONS, REPORT

LONDON, June 3.—(AP)—Food shipments from the United States to Britain under lend lease now total 4,750,000 tons, valued at about $2,695,966,204, Food Administrator J. J. Llewellyn announced today.

River area north of the Burma Road gained the outskirts of Chiaoou, "where fierce fighting is now in progress."

Trouble in China In their Hunan offensive, the Japanese have captured two strong points east of Changteh and north of Changsha, 22 miles east of Changteh.

The Japanese took Pingkiang, 50 miles northeast of Changsha, while to the west about 100 miles northwest of Changsha, Japanese troops seized Ansiang and drove southward to within nine and a half miles of Shanshow, where they were stopped.

According to a Chinese army spokesman the Japanese have massed 280,000 troops for their attempt to cut China in two by taking control of the Canton-Hankow railway.

Along the coast of British New Guinea, Australian jungle troops were closing in on the Nipponese trapped in the Wewak-Hansa Bay area. Aussie forces have reached a point 40 miles south-east of Hansa Bay without meeting any opposition.

Little Girl Kidnapped
But Found Hour Later

SEATTLE, Wash., June 3.—(AP)—Police Capt. William Veek said today Florence Marks, five-year-old daughter of a Navy doctor, had been kidnapped, possibly raped and left huddled in a blanket on a doorstep 14 blocks from her home.

Veek said the girl's parents, Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. Jacob Marks, reported at 2:46 A. M. that Florence was missing from her bedroom and a ladder had been found leading into a second story window of the Marks house.

Forty-five minutes later, Veek said, Mrs. Estel Smart telephoned police that the girl, clinging to a blanket, had rung her doorbell.

The police captain quoted Dr. R. F. Ballard, interne at the hospital where the child was taken, as saying she was "the victim of a possible criminal attack."

The girl was released from the hospital and taken home by her father.

NUDE WOMAN FOUND;
BODY STILL WARM

EAST LIVERPOOL, June 3.—(AP)—The nude body of an unidentified woman, wrapped in blankets and trussed with rope, was found early today in a clump of weeds a few feet off River Road by a home-bound war worker.

Coroner Arnold W. Devon asserted the woman, approximately 30 years old, was "undoubtedly murdered" but cause of death has not been determined. The body, still warm when found, showed marks of violence, he reported.

Devon said the body was unclothed but wrapped in two Indian blankets and tied with several lengths of clothesline rope. The woman apparently was killed some other place and carried to the weed clump, he added.

GERMANS FAIL TO CATCH TITO

Raid on Headquarters of Guerrilla Chief Too Late

BARI, Italy, May 29.—(Delayed)—(AP)—German troops said to have been personally directed by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel swarmed into the Bosnian headquarters of Marshal Tito May 25 in an attempt to capture the Yugoslav Partisan leader but Tito had fled more than an hour before, Partisan sources disclosed today.

Using Stuka dive-bombers, paratroopers, glider-borne infantry and ground forces the Germans—estimated at five divisions—found the Partisan leader had escaped to the mountains along with Maj. Randolph Churchill, son of the British prime minister. Virtually all other Allied officers attached to Tito's staff also escaped.

Two Allied correspondents, Stoyan Pribichevich of Time, Life and Fortune magazines, John Talbot of Reuters, and two photographers were captured by the Nazis, but Pribichevich escaped later during a Partisan attack.

In a statement distributed by an information delegate of the Yugoslav government in New York June 2 Gen. Draja Mihailovic said "the civil war raging in our country under enemy occupation . . . has been provoked by the Partisan movement." Marshal Tito is the leader of the Partisans.

(Mihailovic, who was minister of war in the government of King Peter II until a recent cabinet shakeup, denied "with indignation" previous Partisan assertions that some of the units under his command were collaborating with the Germans.)

Fuel for Planes Costs Billions Yearly

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—The navy is spending more than $1,000 a minute to keep its planes in the air—knocking down enemy fliers, bombing enemy bases and moving supplies and men about the world, it was disclosed today in a compilation of statistics by Rear Adm. William Brent Young, chief of the bureau of supplies and accounts.

"We are spending $1,500,000 a day to keep navy planes flying," he said, "buying fuel at a rate of almost $2,000,000,000 worth a year."

German Forces Cut Off by French Drive -- Bombing Of Europe Continues

By DWIGHT PITKIN

(By the Associated Press) The U. S. and British governments put on the Nazis today the responsibility of sparing Rome. The command in Naples announced the Allies "will only take military action against Rome in so far as the Germans use the city, railways and roads for their military purposes."

The announcement followed Pope Pius' declaration yesterday that "whoever dared raise a hand" against the Eternal City "would be guilty of matricide."

"If the Germans choose to defend Rome the Allies will be obligated to take appropriate military measures to eject them," the U. S.-British announcement said. "It therefore is the sincere hope of His Majesty's Government and the United States Government that the enemy will not make an ill-considered choice."

Evacuated—Say Nazis A Berlin broadcast today quoted a foreign office spokesman as saying that Rome is free from German armed forces.

The broadcast said the statement was made in connection with the Pope's plea not to destroy Rome, and quoted the spokesman as saying:

"On the German side everything has been done for months to preserve Rome from such a fate. Rome today can be regarded as a city free from armed forces."

Today's communiqué disclosed the Germans were resisting bitterly in the Alban hills defense line below Rome. "Although the towns of Velletri and Valmontone have now been taken by troops of the Fifth Army after heavy fighting, the enemy's defense positions in this sector have not yet been broken," the communiqué said. "The penetration into the enemy's position north of Velletri, however, has been enlarged. The enemy's defenses are in considerable depth and firm resistance is being encountered."

Fighting in Hills American troops slugging through the Alban hills toward Rome have captured Monte Castellaccio, 14 miles from the Eternal City, and another American column today drove up the Via Cassilina toward the capital.

Other Allied troops pushed down the highway from Valmontone, one jaw of a potential trap for Nazi rearwards falling back under steady advances by the Allied armies to the southeast.

The power drive that cracked the Germans' Velletri-Valmontone line swept on to Monte Castellaccio 6½ miles north of Velletri, and only 14 miles south-east of Rome.

Headquarters cautioned that although Velletri and Valmontone, bastions of the Rome line, have been captured, "the enemy's defensive position in this sector has not yet been broken," that the German defenses are "in considerable depth and firm resistance is being encountered."

French Troops Advance United States units which took Valmontone struck out in three directions—northwest along the Via Cassilina toward Rome, 20 miles away; southeast along the same road to link up with the French who are driving the Germans out of their last footholds on the south side of the Sacco River, and due north along an important secondary road toward a vital highway junction at Cave, three miles from Valmontone.

EXCELLENT SERVICE
CREDITED TO BRICKER

Maryland's Governor Praises Him in Baltimore

BALTIMORE, June 3.—(AP)—Praise for the "outstanding public service" of Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio came yesterday from Maryland's Democratic Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor as this state became the latest port of call of the Ohio chief executive in his campaign for the Republican nomination for president.

At a luncheon, O'Connor described Bricker as "a personable, experienced and, yes, qualified executive."

O'Connor, formerly a staunch supporter of President Roosevelt, has become critical in recent years of what he calls "an assumption of powers which belong to the states."

HEREFORD ASSOCIATION TO HOLD FIRST SALE JUNE 10

76 PUREBREDS TO BE OFFERED BY 12 MEMBERS

One of Two Main Purposes Is To Improve Breed of Herd in Community

With exception of a few minor details, arrangements were just about complete today for the new Fayette County Hereford Breeders Association's first sale next Saturday at the Fairground here.

The association was formed only last March with two main purposes: (1) improvement of the breed in this immediate community and (2) to lend a helpful hand to breeders, especially those operating on a small scale, through development of broader and better markets.

The approaching sale will be the first step toward attainment of those two purposes.

Twelve of the 15 charter members of the association have consigned purebred Herefords to the sale. In all 76 head will be offered in 60 lots. There will be 16 cows with calves by their sides, 24 bulls, 8 bred cows and 12 open heifers sent into the sales ring to go under the auctioneer's hammer to the highest bidder.

The sale is scheduled to start at 1:30 P.M., but officers of the association expressed the hope that both buyers and interested spectators would come early to inspect the cattle. Association members admitted they are proud of their stock and that they are especially anxious that good judges of cattle have a look at them. Some of the best Hereford bloodlines in the country will be represented in the offerings at this sale, they said, and pointed out that "they all are high class, rugged individuals" and added that the bulls are now ready for service. Many prominent breeders are expected to attend the sale, and committee members suggested that this would be a good opportunity for stock raisers here to get acquainted.

Lunch will be served on the grounds by the Conner Parent-Teacher Association.

The cattle all are to be housed in the cattle barn on the Fairground and a sales arena surrounded by banks of seats is to be set up in a tent nearby to provide more comfortable accommodations for the buyers and spectators and to better show the stock.

HAY HARVEST NOW WELL UNDER WAY

Large Crop This Year and Labor Is Scarce

Hay harvest is now well under way in the community, and the crop this year is one of the best in years, with big yields of alfalfa, sweet clover and mixed hay to help provide hay for livestock.

Not only is the crop a heavy one, but many farmers are without adequate harvest hands to handle the crop promptly, and as a result calls have been issued by the Farm Labor Board for all men and husky boys who can do so, to apply at the Farm Bureau Building on Delaware Street to be assigned to jobs, either full time or part time.

Eyes of critical farmers and livestock raisers will be turned on 76 purebred and registered Herefords, such as the two Fayette County prize winners shown above, when the three-month-old Fayette County Hereford Breeders Association holds its first sale at the Fairgrounds here next Saturday. It is such beef cattle as these that have been bringing top prices and it also is such as these that the association seeks to increase in the county through improvement of the breed by making approved type of Hereford bulls available to farmers through periodical sales by its members.

DAILY PRICE-WEIGHT SCALE SUGGESTED AS SOLUTION TO LIVESTOCK MARKET PROBLEMS

Taking a serious view of the present livestock situation in which congestion of markets requires moratoriums and selling permits, Frank DeWitt, dean of stock buyers here, is convinced that it must be adjusted before September and suggests adoption of a schedule of daily prices and weights with "exact proportional hold-over of each grade each day . . . to control the packer as well as the buyer."

In the following article, in which the statements made are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of this paper, DeWitt points out that it is "only natural" for the packer "to neglect controlled weights and prices for the uncontrolled cheaper grades."

The 4-H Club sheep essay contest which started with the Marion Township Wool Tyers has been extended to include all sheep club members of the county. The contest papers must be in the hands of Willard Bitzer by June 10. There is no rule as to length—a short one may win over a long one. The subject is: "Why Sheep Are My Favorite Livestock" or "Why I Choose a Sheep Project."

Some essays are already in. Be sure to get yours in right away. The winning essays and runners-up will be printed in this column. The Marion Township Wool Tyers met with their leader for the regular meeting June 1. The business meeting was preceded by a hotly contested ball game. All members were present. MEAT SITUATION IS EXPECTED TO CLEAR UP SOON

General Sale of Livestock Credited With Piling Up Stocks in Storage

CHICAGO, June 3.—(AP)—For some time meat supplies have been maintained by general liquidation of sheep, lambs and hogs, and by the premature marketing of feedlot cattle, the National Live Stock Producer, a trade publication, said today.

"There is still some uncertainty as to whether the western beef cattle industry will be sacrificed to obtain more adequate supplies this coming summer and fall," the publication added, "and a definite decision soon will have to be made as the fed cattle supply is rapidly coming to an end."

"The consumer is still confused in regard to meat supplies. Substantial storage stocks were accumulated earlier in the year and with the final stages of hog liquidation, ration points have been removed from pork, lamb, veal

W. W. Montgomery, county agent, gave the Uncle Sam's Stitches 4-H Club a picture of what is in store for them this summer when he spoke at the group's meeting at Eber school with Member Leader Jo Ann Kellough.

Summer projects chosen for the club range from comparatively simple needlework, such as towels and potholders, to intricately made dresses.

Jo Ann Babb is president of the club. Other officers are Stella Briggs, vice-president; Betty Babb, secretary; Florence Torbett, treasurer; Verna Mae Robinson, news reporter and Jo Ann Kellough, member leader.

Other members include Georgia Rose Aills, Alia Massey, Audrey Clellin, Daisy Walker, Agnes Montavon Rosemary Justice and Sara Montavon.

CLAIM JUNE 2 RAINS SPOIL BLACKBERRIES

For decades there has been an old belief that rain on June second spoils the blackberry crop by destroying the pollen.

There was an abundance of rain over much of the blackberry growing area, June 2nd. However blackberry bloom was earlier this year and in many instances the briars are already covered with sizeable green berries, so indications are that the June 2nd rain will not do much damage to the blackberry crop this year.

MULCH ON PEONIES

We have been trying that for three years, with very good results. We used a manure mulch two years, put around the plants early in the spring, and left on during the growing season. This year we used a heavy leaf mulch; the plants are very vigorous, and as this is written, it looks like the bloom will be much heavier than it was last year, and it was very heavy then.

A common way to take care of peonies is to take the leaves and litter from around them in early spring. We used to do this, and the blossoms were small and not very numerous. We very much prefer the mulch system.

I recall being in a peony planting in Clinton County two years ago, where the peonies were cultivated, about like you would cultivate tomatoes. The results were very good, but we still prefer the mulch system, as it is a labor saver, and it is very hard to get extra help this year, even with the garden and flowers.

PASTURE LAXATIVE THIS YEAR

Had you noticed that? We have had a lot of rain, during the short time the grass has been growing, and it is "washy" as one man described it. If you can get it, it will pay to add some cottonseed meal, to the grain feed for the dairy cattle, especially to the ration of the cows that are "scouring" the most, for a cow that has a ration that is too laxative will lose weight, and she is sure to have a marked reduction in the milk flow, later in the lactation period, that can be largely prevented by correcting the ration, as suggested.

MANY HARVEST HANDS WANTED

Men and Boys Are Asked To Report Next Week

Dozens of harvest workers are wanted on farms in Fayette County, and good wages are being paid to men and husky boys who will assist in the work.

Hay harvest will be under way in real earnest during the coming week, and all available labor is needed to help care for the big hay crop which is vital as food for livestock.

All who want jobs in the hayfield are asked to apply at the office of the Farm Labor Board at the Farm Board building on Delaware Street.

While the Farm Labor Board is calling for 25 men to report next week, it is stated that three or four times that number could be used in the county.

DRY AREAS IN COUNTY RECEIVE RAIN FRIDAY

Sections of Fayette County that had been suffering for want of rain for the past two or three weeks, received a drenching Friday during the series of showers that struck Fayette County.

One of these areas was in Paint township, where some farmers had been unable to condition their soil as result of the dry weather.

Rainfall softened the clods and farmers will be able to resume their work first of the week.

POTATOES NEED PROTECTION OF SPRAYING AND DUSTING AGAINST BLIGHT AND BURN

The yield of potatoes is likely to be very disappointing even though certified seed is used unless the new leaves as they develop are protected with copper dust or spray. Potato diseases, such as early blight, tip blight, hopper burn, and late blight develop during the summer and cause yellowing, wilting, or killing of the foliage, which naturally results in poor yields.

Thorough and timely dusting, or spraying with copper fungicides will keep these diseases in check. To be effective applications should begin when the plants are three to four inches in height and must be repeated every 7 to 14 days, depending on how rapidly the plants are growing. A good rule to follow is to apply copper dust, or sprays as fast as new foliage develops.

Prepared copper dust containing 6 to 7 per cent metallic copper including an insecticide for the control of the Colorado potato beetle will be generally available in 1944. Dust will be more effective if applied in the late evening or early morning when

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

While nobody yet has been able to put salt on the tail of D-Day, one gets the definite impression that the gigantic Allied forces which are drawn up in battle array on the vital eastern and western sides of Hitler's European fortress are so well set that they could strike at will.

There's an atmosphere of vast power held in leash, pending the arrival of that mysterious moment which the favored few of the Allied high command have chosen. You get what I mean from events on the Russo-German front in Romania.

There, in an effort to forestall the coming storm, the Hitlerites have been making furious attacks against a Red line which has held them with contemptuous strength. Up in southeastern Poland—gateway to Germany—the Nazis also have been making anxious exploratory thrusts, only to be beaten back by a similar stone-wall.

So it is, too, with the western Allies. The intensive, invasion-type bombing continues apace. Perhaps the American and British air fleets still have considerable spade work they want to do before the amphibious forces get into action—or perhaps the task is about done. That's not for the public to know. Still, many observers feel confident that the American-British combination can strike at any moment it wants to.

There may be other subsidiary offensives before the eastern and western fronts erupt. The Germans are looking for that. They think there may be an Allied invasion in the Balkans. They suspect that French legions from Africa may be flung into the valley of the Rhone in southern France.

Well, both those operations—and others—might be undertaken as preliminaries to the grand assaults of D-Day. Hitler is going to be compelled to defend every loophole in his Fortress Europe. Meantime, we have a going and profitable business in Italy. Nazi Field Marshal Kesselring will have to use all his undoubted skill to save himself from the total disaster which grows out of the defeat he already has suffered.

The marshal sustained nasty blows when American forces got astride Via Casilina, thereby cutting the main line of retreat from his southern front, while other Yankee troops thrust through the German line into the Alban hills south of Rome. Loss of the Alban hill defenses would be a catastrophe for him, since he would be cut off from the highways, most of which center in Rome.

Thus, much depends on the outcome of the fierce battle for the Alban hills. Whatever may be the ultimate outcome of Kesselring's efforts to extricate his troops from the Allied trap, he already has suffered heavy casualties, and his losses in equipment have been terrific.

HEREFORD ASSOCIATION TO HOLD FIRST SALE HERE NEXT SATURDAY

ter Bumgardner, a Fayette County auctioneer who has had years of experience in livestock selling, will be the auctioneer.

Edward Glaze is the association president, Carl J. McCoy is the vice president, and Sam B. Marting, of the Bea-Mar Farms, is the secretary-treasurer. Other members of the association from whose farms these Herefords will come to this first sale are: Baldwin Rice, John Schmitt, Robert Case, Emerson Marting, Charles E. Haigler & Son, Homer L. McCoy & Son, Harold Mark, H. W. Zimman and M. Grove Davis.

A spokesman for the association, elaborating on plans for improvement of the breed in this community, said he hoped farmers would take advantage of this opportunity to get a good registered bull to head his herd, whether it be large or small. He added with emphasis "we want to stop this traffic in scrub bulls, because these mongrel and often diseased bulls are so costly in the end to the farmer who puts one on his farm."

Ray Brandenburg, Baldwin Rice and Charles Haigler made up the committee that made the arrangements for the sale.

AIRMEN BUY 'EM AND FLY 'EM IN THEATER OF WAR

Good Example Set for Sale Of Fifth War Bonds In This County

With the Fifth War Bond sales campaign soon to get under way, it will be interesting to citizens generally to know what one unit in the American armed forces, stationed somewhere in England, did about buying bonds.

Some weeks ago Capt. C. A. Patton, whose home is on Washington Avenue here, sent a clipping to his wife here which read as follows:

"They Buy 'Em to Fly 'Em"

"Not satisfied with working around the clock modifying and repairing the American fighters and bombers that are spreading destruction through Germany, soldiers of a United States Air Service Command station in the Northwest, opened a drive today to sell $114,000 in American war bonds which will be used to purchase two more of the famous long range Mustang fighter-bombers.

"One of the planes will be named 'Too Bad' while the winner will name the other plane after his mother, wife, sweetheart or hometown.

"Col. John G. Moore, commanding officer of the station, said early enthusiasm indicated that the soldiers would achieve their goal within a week.

"Plans are being made to keep track of the war record of the two planes, which will be flown from the station by their combat pilots after appropriate ceremonies."

A few days ago Mrs. Patton received another communication from her husband, announcing that the soldiers had not only purchased bonds to buy two Mustang fighter-bombers, but had purchased more than enough to buy three such planes.

of sheep and held an open forum on sheep problems for them. This club has three girls as members and they are keeping the boys up on their toes. The recreation leader Billie Arnold had planned the ball game and had arranged for bingo and other indoor games in case of rain. The next meeting will also be an evening meeting on Thursday, July 6, at the home of Billie and Harriet Arnold. This meeting will be a picnic.

Some weeks ago there appeared in this column some pointers on summer management of the sheep flock. This week we would like to stress the proper procedure in weaning the lamb. In flocks kept primarily for producing market lambs it is best to separate the ewes and lambs and not allow them to be together again. The ewes should be taken from the lambs leaving the lambs in quarters where they have been accustomed to be. A week or so before they are to be weaned, they should be allowed to graze on the feed intended for them through the weaning period. It is better to have them where the feed is fresh and good even though the place is unfamiliar to them rather than leave them where the feed is poor.

Another method of weaning is to get the ewes and lambs gradually accustomed to being separated. You begin this method while the lambs are not old enough to do without milk. The lambs can be placed on the cleanest best pasture while the ewes are finishing up the old second-rate pasture allowing the ewes and lambs to be together only in the dry lot. If this method is begun early enough parasites can in a large measure be kept out of the lambs.

Next week we will discuss feeding lambs after weaning. One important factor in summer control is the keeping of the flock worm free. Do not wait for the appearance of the worms. Worm at regular intervals all during the summer months and you will be rewarded with a healthy easy doing flock of sheep.

Farm Pickups

Federal regulations now permit any farmer to apply as much nitrogen per acre for crops as his state experiment station recommends for that purpose.

Federal agencies are advocating a plan to establish in every county a non-paid committee organized by the county agricultural agent to advise war veterans about purchase or operation of farms.

A group of Ohio poultrymen keeping flock income records find they received an average of $3.68 less income from each 100 hens in March, 1944, than in March, 1943. The hens laid more eggs this year than in 1943, but prices slumped.

The Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act provides that no loan shall be authorized by its provisions for the purchase of a farm which is too small to enable a diligent farm family to carry on successful farming. The provisions apply to purchases by returned soldiers, war workers, or tenant farmers.

Ohio clubs, churches, or other groups intending to do collective canning can obtain permission to buy suitable food processing equipment by filling out WPB form No. 576 and mailing the completed form to Office of Distribution, 175 South High Street, Columbus. The 7-quart and 14-quart pressure cookers suitable for individual canning are not rationed.

Proof that cows will produce well on moderate amounts of grain is provided by records from the Trumbull County Experiment Farm. One group of cows fed one pound of grain for each 6.5 pounds of milk produced a yearly average of 11,000 pounds of milk and 358 pounds of butterfat in 355 days. Similar cows fed one pound of grain for each 4.5 pounds of milk produced an average of 10,787 pounds of milk and 355 pounds of butterfat in the same time.

PRICE-WEIGHT SCALE SUGGESTED SOLUTION FOR STOCK PROBLEMS

180 lbs. to 240 lbs. $13.75; 240 lbs. to 275 lbs. $12.50; 275 lbs. to 300 lbs. $11.25; 300 lbs. and up $10. I would also require an exact proportional holdover of each grade in each daily session. In this way you would control the packer as well as the producer.

These problems of supply and distribution are national and they must be adjusted before September if no other way than by a moratorium.

The average American thinks only in terms as they effect him and his family and doesn't realize that the government is buying 40 per cent of all the goods we produce. Yet, we want the sun to stand still upon Gibeon and thou moon in the valley of Ajalon. Josh. 10-12.

are in the midst of corn planting, and some men are far behind with their plowing.

I am not surprised that one man of my acquaintance, who has been successful in farming, plows and plants right away. He works the ground down to a fine, firm level seed bed, and puts the corn in like he would his garden. "That corn will be up in a few days, if this warm weather continues, and it will already have a good cultivation," I said to a friend as we looked at his field.

This man is a great believer in early cultivation, too. He plows just as soon as he can. I have seen him use blind cultivation, with very good results, but the corn is usually coming up, by the time he gets time to plow it.

(Excuse me. I should have explained what I mean by "blind cultivation" for our city readers, and the editors of the chain of papers using this column, tell me that I have a lot of them. By "blind cultivation" I mean cultivating the crop, before it comes up.)

PLOWING CORN GROUND TWICE

Did you ever hear of a farmer plowing his corn twice, before he planted his corn? I never did until a few weeks ago, when a very successful farmer told me that he broke the ground for one piece of his corn twice last year, and he thinks he did the right thing. He had plowed a bottom field early, and by the time he got around to planting it, it had such a growth of sweet clover and weeds and vines it, that he was having trouble getting a good seed bed, by double disking and dragging, so he plowed the ground again and put all of this growth under. He had one of the best crops of corn that he has ever had, and he gets close to a hundred bushels per acre at times.

MEAT PACKERS NAMED IN INJUNCTION SUITS

CHICAGO, June 3—(P)—Four of the nation's leading meat packing firms—Armour, Swift, Wilson and Cudahy—were named defendants in injunction suits filed today by the OPA to restrain them from selling pork cuts containing amounts of fat exceeding OPA regulations.

The civil suits were filed in the federal district court by Rae E. Walters, OPA regional administrator.

Walters said the OPA allowed a half inch of fat on pork butts and loins. The complaint stated investigation by OPA as well as statements taken from meat dealers and buyers, showed many instances of fat excesses on pork cuts sold by the companies. In some instances the fat amounted to two and one-half inches or more, affidavits filed with the suit set forth.

TRUCK BREAKS DOWN ON B. & O. TRACKS

Railroad Blocked Until Truck Removed

Friday afternoon while a truck laden with bricks, being hauled by the Dawson Truck lines of Xenia, was crossing the B. and O. and D. T. and I. tracks on West Temple Street, the cab section of the trailer truck slipped from under the trailer and the front end of the truck dropped to the paving, completely blocking the B. and O. tracks.

The Tim Hughes wrecker was called and after considerable difficulty the truck was jacked up and moved from the tracks. Damage was light.

Changing Generals

According to Swedish reports, Hitler has switched jockeys again. The latest reported move is Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's replacement by Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt as Germany's anti-invasion commander in chief. This sort of thing has been going on for the past couple of years as military and political expediency dictated.

Von Rundstedt is of the Prussian military clique. Rommel rose from the Nazi ranks. Von Rundstedt has always been Rommel's superior. But Nazi propaganda had indicated that Rommel was to command the second-front forces. If past performances are any guide, Rommel's appointment was a reflection of Nazi confidence that the invasion could be stopped. The fact that Von Rundstedt is taking a more active part might indicate ebbing confidence.

When the going gets tough, Hitler falls back on the military clique. Prussian generals predominated at the start of the Russian campaign, though neither the campaigns nor the Fuehrer's intuition aroused their enthusiasm.

As the Germans rolled along toward Moscow, early in the war, there were frequent replacements of Junker officers by good party men. Hitler's intuition then was right, and the Junkers were wrong. Some of the Prussian generals "died," others were retired because of "ill health." But after Stalingrad, the replacements started going the other way.

It is likely that Von Rundstedt has been called in to do an emergency fireman job, and that when defeat appears inevitable he may be replaced by Rommel or some other Nazi. For Hitler obviously still fears the Prussian Junkers as much as they scorn him. Their alliance has always been uncomfortable.

When things were going well, it was to Hitler's advantage to put Nazi generals at the head of the victorious forces and thus build party prestige. But it is equally to his advantage to have the army out of Prussian hands when defeat comes. Otherwise they might turn upon him and his party and take the army with them.

They will undoubtedly blame him for defeat. They will be bitter, for they have wanted military supremacy as ardently as Hitler, and they have wanted it longer. It's a hereditary taint. So there is little question but that Hitler wants the military clique as weak as possible when the Allies march in and the Nazi big-wigs run for cover.

But to the Allies it will make no difference who's in charge. There are too many indications this time, Nazi or Junker, their number is up.

Astronomical Figures

The national debt limit has been raised to $240,000,000,000 by the House of Representatives. The Treasury originally wanted $260,000,000,000. We have not been able to ask our representative why he and his penny-pinching colleagues quibbled over a mere 20 billion. But it's very unlikely that he or anyone else could tell us.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

DES MOINES, Iowa.—There is one race here that commands more than passing attention because it's going to be a knock-down and drag-out effort to replace the state's only Democrat in Congress. Sen. Guy M. Gillette, with one of the most interesting political careers in office here, Gov. Bourke B. Hickel.

Down around Republican state headquarters, they are offering even money that Gov. Hickel will be the next senator by 180,000 and they'll give odds that he wins by 150,000.

They argue that politically, Sen. Gillette's star is fading, while the governor's is in the ascendency. The latter seems to be true. They contend that Sen. Gillette got at least 50,000 GOP votes in 1938.

They say that the senator's last-minute filing for reelection after he had told friends he didn't intend to run has hurt him with many supporters. They say state wide reports indicate that the President's "Dear Guy" letter has hurt with the anti-Roosevelt Democrats, who have been further alienated by Sen. Gillette's statement that he would vote for a fourth term, after vehemently debating against the third four years ago.

On the other hand, Sen. Gillette garnered nearly 413,000 votes in 1938, and although he won by a narrow margin, he polled nearly 62,000 votes more than the nine Democratic congressmen who were running; while his opponent got nearly 30,000 less than the total of the nine Republican congressmen. That's certainly an indication that in 1938, at least, the senator had friends on the other side of the political fence.

He has been in politics almost continuously since 1906 and has a considerable number of "wins" to his credit, including two terms in the House of Representatives, from which he resigned to become senator. He is by profession a farmer, no slight asset in this state, you can be sure. He served in both the Spanish-American and the first World wars, winning his captain's bars in the latter.

Into this picture comes his opposition to one of the most popular office holders in Iowa today. Gov. Hickel has made an excellent record. He has made few enemies and many friends. Although he's a Cedar Rapids attorney, he is as much of the grass root as Sen. Gillette.

Not even the Presidential race interests Iowa as much as this little intramural fracas. Its outcome is of more than state importance. It may mark the passing of the last Democratic stronghold in this section of the grass roots—temporarily, at least.

One-Minute Test

1. What is the difference between "elusive" and "illusive."

Words of Wisdom

Honesty is one part of eloquence. We persuade others by being in earnest ourselves.—Hazlitt.

Today's Horoscope

The easiest path is the one you pursue, if today is your birthday. You are independent, have originality and a fair amount of ambition, but your love of ease and comfort deters you from the greater success of which you are capable. You are moody and often depressed. You love deeply and faithfully. Do not spoil your really good prospects by impetuosity and resentment of others' success. Be guarded in the written and spoken word, and avoid extravagance. The child born on this date will enjoy more than average good fortune, but a hot temper should be early controlled, and high aspirations encouraged.

Horoscope for Sunday

If you are celebrating a birthday today you are exceedingly optimistic, even in the face of disaster. You are bright and witty, good-natured, thorough in your work, and do it with ease and enthusiasm. You have many friends, will make a happy marriage, and command a strong and devoted love. In the next 12 months do not attempt the impossible. Concentrate on manageable success, then your efforts will be rewarded. Act upon your own true intuitions. The child born on this date will require a sound and careful upbringing to counteract the strong self-centered characteristics likely to be manifested. Trouble through documents is foreseen.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. "Elusive" means baffling; "illusive" is unreal.

For the national debt has passed beyond human comprehension and into the same league with infinity. Both stagger the imagination, defy experience, and send the senses reeling. Probably Dr. Albert Einstein can speak a good deal more confidently and cogently about infinity than anybody else can about how we're going to handle a public debt of perhaps 300 billion—or whether it's going to handle us.

Now, as we understand the problem (which we certainly don't) it isn't simply a matter of knocking off nine zeros and saying, "If a man owes so much and makes so much money, how long will it take him to pay off?" For nobody knows exactly what the bill is going to be, or the size of the income.

But we're going to have to pay off somehow. The only alternatives are repudiation or inflation, both of which would surely knock the national economy flat on its face. The interest on $300,000,000,000 would be $6,000,000,000, or about what the government ordinarily spends in a year. To pay that means keeping the national income about where it is now. And that in turn means full employment, high production, high wages, high prices and high taxes.

And that brings us to an old familiar argument which is being taken up again in high-powered circles; How are full employment and production to be achieved, by government spending or private enterprise? The private-enterprise enthusiasts seem to have the best of it, since government spending never made much of a reputation for itself as a debt reducer or a prescription for prosperity.

So all the private-enterprise enthusiasts have to do now is convince the other side that business and industry can turn the trick, and then make mighty sure that they really do.

It doesn't look like what you'd call a simple task. But at least there's one comfort. No one yet has come up with the old one about, "Well, it doesn't really matter because we just owe the money to ourselves."

If anyone does, he will probably be given a sheet of paper and a pair of blunt scissors, and told to go sit quietly in the corner.

Machine Diagnosis Has Limitations

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

"IF YOU CAN'T tell the cause of a headache, a heartache or a bellyache, without the use of an encephalogram, an electrocardiogram and a fluoroscope you are slipping," Dr. Martin Fischer, of Cincinnati, told some of his fellow medical practitioners. Yes, this is a machine age in medicine as anywhere else. And machines are perfectly accurate. They tell the facts within the limitations of their powers. Only man-made machines don't recognize their limitations.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Cincinnati, told some of his fellow medical practitioners. Yes, this is a machine age in medicine as anywhere else. And machines are perfectly accurate. They tell the facts within the limitations of their powers. Only man-made machines don't recognize their limitations. The electrocardiogram machine will tell about a person who has a heartache or whose heart is skipping around, just what part of the heart muscle is acting up. But the machine doesn't get around much. When they get through using it they put a canvas hood over it and leave it in the technician's office and go out and close the door. The machine doesn't know what the fellow with the skipping heart and heartache does Saturday night, or what the letters in his pocket say, or just where his son in the armed forces is stationed.

Limitations of Machines
My old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, and I were sitting side by side listening to a very learned lecture by a very scientific person about a very complicated case. "And what would you do next?" asked the speaker, with dramatic emphasis. "Look for the bottle of opium in the bureau drawer," muttered Dr. Gibbs, who has had a good deal of experience with human nature. The machine cannot look in a bureau drawer.

The present situation creates conditions that are naturally reflected in the heart. All the proverbs remind us of that. What we don't remember is that anxiety doesn't result always in just a sad heart. It may spill over into symptoms that resemble real disease. You can call it angina pectoris if you want to and the machine may say angina pectoris, but it is heartache just the same and the cause is not the coronary circulation, but a son or husband or brother out on the firing line at Anzio or New Guinea.

I spoke last week of the palpitations of the heart, the skipped beats and irregularities that are caused by emotion. There is still another set of symptoms that are mistaken for real organic heart disease and those have to do with shortness of breath and difficult breathing. Everybody knows that difficult or labored breathing, dyspnea, as the doctors call it, is a sign of heart disease. Fundamentally it is due to the need of the tissue cells for oxygen.

Shortness of Breath
The athlete after a race is breathing in a labored fashion because the effort of the race has caused his muscles to use up an extra amount of oxygen and to accumulate a lot of carbon dioxide. His heart being strong he is soon adjusted to a state of compensation. The weak heart muscle of the heart patient causes the same condition as exertion does in the case of the athlete, so he is short of breath at rest.

A great many people, however, in these emotional times find themselves with sighing respiration and since this imitates the labored breathing of heart disease they conclude they are in that class. This has long been known as functional, or nervous, dyspnea. It can easily be distinguished by any doctor, if he takes the trouble to examine the heart of such a person. In fact it can be distinguished by the character of the breathing. The commonest sensation is that the breath doesn't get to the bottom of the lungs. The breathing is not exactly labored—there is a sighing and a panting type. It isn't present all the time, but comes in spells. You can put it down not to heart disease but to the difficult conditions of our time.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

©1944 M. LITTLE, BROWN & CO., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

Mr. Queen found it harder and harder to work on his novel. For one thing, there was the fine Indian Summer weather. The countryside was splashed with reds and oranges and yellows and greens; the days were frost-touched now as well as the nights, hinting at early snows; nights came on swiftly, with a crackle...

Wiley Gallimard came into town with five truckloads of turkeys and got rid of them in no time.

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Queen to himself. "Thanksgiving's in the air—everywhere except at 460 Hill Drive."

Then there was Pat, whose recent habit of peering over her own shoulder had become chronic. She clung to Ellery so openly that Hermione Wright began to make secret plans in her head and even John F., who never noticed anything but flaws in mortgages and rare postage stamps, looked thoughtful...

It made work difficult. But most of all it was watching Jim and Nora (without seeming to) that occupied Ellery's time. Things were growing worse in the Haight household.

For Jim and Nora no longer "got along." There were quarrels so bitter that their impassioned voices flew through the November air all the way across the driveway to the Wright house through closed windows. Sometimes it was about Rosemary; sometimes it was about Jim's drinking; sometimes it was about money. Jim and Nora continued to put up a brave show before Nora's family, but everyone knew what was going on.

"Jim's gambling," reported Pat one evening.

"Is he?" frowned Mr. Queen. "Nora was talking to him about it this morning." Pat was so distressed she could not sit still. "And he admitted it—shouted it at her. And in the next breath asked her for money. Nora pleaded with him to tell her what was wrong, but the more she pleads, the angrier Jim gets. Ellery, I think he's touched. I really do!"

"That's not the answer," said the author-detector stubbornly. "There's a pattern here. His conduct doesn't fit. Pat's right. If only he'd talk. But he won't. Ed Hotchkiss brought him home in the cab last night. I was waiting on the porch—Nora'd gone to bed. Jim was pretty well illuminated. But when I began to pump him—"

Ellery shrugged. "It's wrong at me." Pat jerked. "What?"

"Oh, that was nothing but this is: He's pawing jewelry." "Pawing jewelry? Where?"

"I followed him today when he left the bank at noon. He ducked into Simpson's on the Square, and pawed what looked to me like a cameo brooch set with rubies."

"That's Nora's! Aunt Tabitha gave it to her as a high school graduation present!"

Ellery took her hands. "Jim has no money of his own, has he?" "None except what he earns."

Pat's lips tightened. "My father spoke to him the other day. About his work. Jim's neglecting it. You know Pop. Gentle as a lamb. It must have embarrassed him dreadfully. But Jim snapped at him, and poor Pop just blinked and walked away. And have you noticed how my mother's been looking?"

"Dazed."

"Muth won't admit anything's wrong—even to me. And the town—Emmy DuPre's busier than Goebbels! They're all whispering... I hate them! I hate Jim!"

Ellery put his arms around her. Nora planned Thanksgiving with a sort of desperation—a woman trying to hold on to her world as it growled and heaved about her.

There were two of Wiley Gallimard's fanciest toms, and chestnuts to be fricated, and cranberries to be fricated, and pumpkins and turnips and pumpkins and goodies galore... all requiring fuss and work, with and without Alberta Manakass's help... all requiring concentration. And while her house filled with savory odors, Nora would brook no assistance from anyone but Alberta.

Hermione dabbed at her eyes. "It's the first Thanksgiving since we were married, John, that I haven't made the family dinner."

"Maybe this time," chuckled John F. "I won't have indigestion."

Nora shook them all into the living room—things weren't quite ready. Jim, a little drawn, but sober, wanted to stay and help. Nora smiled pallidly at her husband and sent him after the others.

Mr. Queen strolled out to the Haight porch, so he was the first to greet Lola Wright as she came up the walk. She was wearing the same pair of slacks, the same tight-fitting sweater, the same ribbon in her hair.

"Don't look at me that way, stranger! I'm invited. Family reunion 'n' stuff. Kiss and make up, I'm broad-minded. How come, you no-visit little Lola?"

"Too busy on that novel." "Yeah!" laughed Lola. "No writer works more than a few hours a day, if that. It's my Snuffy. You're making love to Pat. 'Sall right. You could do worse. 'I could do worse, but I'm not doing anything."

"Ah, noble, too! Well, brother, excuse me. I've got to go job my family's sensibilities." And Lola walked into her sister's house.

Mr. Queen waited on the porch a decent interval, then followed. He came upon a scene of purest gaiety. It took keen eyes to detect the emotional confusion behind Hermione's sweet smile, and the quivering of John F.'s hand as he accepted a cocktail from Jim. Pat forced one on Ellery; so he proposed a toast to "a wonderful family," which they all drank.

Then Nora, flushed from the kitchen, hustled them into the dining room; and they dutifully exclaimed over the beautiful and bountiful table.

It happened just as Jim was dishing out second helpings of turkey. Nora was passing her mother's plate when she gasped, and the full plate fell into her lap. The plate—a precious Spode—crashed on the floor.

Jim gripped the arms of his chair. Nora was on her feet, palms pressed against the cloth, her mouth writhing in a horrid spasm.

Ellery reached Nora in one leap. She pushed at him feebly, licking her lips, white as the new cloth. Then with a cry she ran, snatching herself from Ellery's grip with surprising strength. They heard her stumble upstairs, the click of a door.

"Call Doc Willoughby, somebody!"

Ellery and Jim reached the upper floor together, Jim looking around like a wild man, as Ellery was pounding on the bathroom door.

"Nora!" Jim shouted. "Open the door! What's the matter with you?"

Then Pat got there, and the others.

"Dr. Willoughby will be right over," said Lola.

"Break the door down!" commanded Pat. "Ellery, break it down!"

But at the first impact, Nora screamed.

"If anyone comes in here I'll—I'll... Don't come in!"

At the third assault, Ellery catapulted into the bathroom. Nora was leaning over the basin, trembling, greenish, swallowing huge spoonfuls of milk of magnesia. She turned a queerly triumphant look on him as she slumped, fainting, in his arms.

But later, when she came to in her bed, there was a scene. "I feel like an animal in a zoo! Please, Mother—get everybody out of here!"

They all left except Mrs. Wright and Jim. Ellery heard Nora from the upper-hall landing. Her tone was hysterical; the words piled on one another.

"No, no, I won't have him! I don't want to see him!"

"But dearie," wailed Hermione, "Dr. Willoughby—surely the doctor who brought you into the world—"

"If that old goat comes near me," screamed Nora, "I'll do something desperate! I'll jump out the window!"

"Nora," groaned Jim. "Get out of here! Mother, you too!"

Pat and Lola went to the bedroom door and called their mother urgently. "Mother, she's so upset. Let her alone—she'll calm down." Hermione crept out, followed by Jim who was red about the eyes and seemed bewildered.

They heard Nora gagging inside. And crying.

When Dr. Willoughby arrived, John F. said it was a mistake, and sent him away.

Ellery softly closed his door. But he knew before he turned on the light someone was in the room. Pat lay on his bed in a cramped curl. There was a damp spot on the pillow, near her face.

"I've been waiting up for you," Pat blinked in the light. "What time is it?"

"Past midnight." The author-detector switched the light off and sat down beside her. "How is Nora?"

"She says she's fine. I guess she'll be all right." Pat was silent for a moment. "Where did you disappear to?"

"Ed Hotchkiss drove me over to Connhaven!" Pat sat up abruptly. "Ellery, what did you do?"

"I took the contents of Nora's plate over to a research laboratory. Connhaven has a good one."

"Did you—did they?"

"They found nothing."

"Then maybe—"

Ellery got off the bed and began to walk up and down in the dark room. "Maybe the cocktails. The soup. The hors d'oeuvres. Wherever she got it, though, it was in her food or drink. Arsenic. All the symptoms. Lucky she remembered to swallow milk of magnesia—it's an emergency antidote for arsenic poisoning."

"And today is... Thanksgiving Day," said Pat stiffly. "Jim's letter to Rosemary—dated November twenty-eighth... today. Remember, Ellery? 'My wife is sick. My wife is sick. Ellery!'"

"Whoa, Patty. You've been doing fine... But it could be a coincidence."

"You think so?"

"It may have been a sudden attack of indigestion. Nora's in a dither. She's read the letters, she's seen that passage about arsenic in the toxicology book—it may all be psychological."

"Yes."

"Our imaginations may be running away with us. At any rate, there's time. And, Pat, I promise you: Nora won't die."

"Oh, Ellery!" She came to him in the darkness and buried her face in his coat. "I'm so glad you're here."

"Get out of my bedroom," said Mr. Queen tenderly, "before your paces come with a shotgun."

Parade of the Oscars in Movieland

By JENNIFER JONES

(The star of "Since You Went Away" and Academy Award winner for her performance in "The Song of Bernadette" writes today for Robin Coons. This is the first of a series by award winners.)

HOLLYWOOD.—When young girls write to actresses for advice about the best way to achieve their own acting ambitions, they mean: "What is the quickest way to become famous?"

A least, that was what I meant, aged 17, when I found the courage to write Katharine Cornell. I had never met nor even seen her, but she answered my letter. She urged me to go to college before I went to dramatic school.

I had hoped she would say: "You can't start studying dramatics too soon." But my father and mother convinced me it was sound advice, and off to college I went. After a year I persuaded them I should wait no longer for dramatic school. In my impatience, I threw Katharine Cornell's counsel to the winds.

NOW other young girls are writing to me with the same questions, and I have to admit that I am not so sure of the formula as I was at 17. I am not even sure now that there is a formula.

There seems to be a popular belief that Jennifer Jones became an actress overnight with "Bernadette." I can understand why people like to believe the story. It's one that makes it easier for them to dream. Unfortunately, it isn't true. It took me six years to become an actress, and I still have to pinch myself occasionally to make sure that I really did survive the struggle, and that I

Faculty Members Taking Advanced Summer Work

Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood and Miss Mary Elizabeth Browning, faculty members of Washington High School, left Saturday for Denton, Texas, where they will enroll in the graduate school of the Texas State College for Women, for six weeks.

Miss Browning is planning to study voice, dramatics and beginning Spanish, while Miss Wood will take an advanced Spanish course leading to M.A. degree.

Both have planned to make their residence in Casa Espagnola where no English will be spoken, thus they will use to fullest advantage their knowledge of this subject which Miss Wood has been teaching in the high school, here.

They will go to Saltillo on July 19 where they will attend the Summer School of Spanish, sponsored by the Texas State College of Women, which will last from July 20 until August 30, and they plan to arrive at their homes here on September 4.

Enroute and during their 12 weeks stay, the young women plan to visit in Nashville, Tenn., with First Lieutenant and Mrs. G. A. Shawkey, and in Sulphur, Okla., with Rev. and Mrs. N. G. Hills, classmates of Miss Wood at Denison University. They will also visit Pvt. Robert Browning, Miss Browning's brother, who is stationed at North Camp Hood, Texas.

COMING FEATURES AT THE THEATERS

Andy Hardy goes to college in "Andy Hardy's Blonde Trouble"

The newest in a series of Hardy family pictures, which will be shown at the Fayette Theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. As usual, Andy has his troubles with co-eds—three of them this time—and all blondes. They are Bonita Granville, and the beautiful, blonde and talented Wilde Twins. Others featured in the film are Lewis Stone, Fay Holden, Sara Haden, Herbert Marshall, Kaye Luke and Jean Porter. Andy Hardy goes to college in this latest of famous Hardy series, and along with the regular cast is the Wilde Twins in this rib-tickling picture and even you won't be able to tell them apart. So imagine what a time Andy has when he meets one, and then the other in different scenes and before long he's trying to figure out whether he's daffy or seeing double!

Heralded as among the greatest films of the year, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" starring Lynn Bari, Akim Tamiroff, Francis Lederer, with Louis Calhern, Donald Woods and Alla Nazimova in prominent roles will be shown at the Fayette Theater, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The film has been adopted for the screen from Thornton Wilder's powerful Pulitzer prize winning novel. Lynn Bari, starring as the exotic dancer "Perichole" gives a moving performance as the woman who rose from street dancer to consort of the Viceroy of Peru. Co-starring with her are Akim Tamiroff, as lovable Uncle Pio and Francis Lederer returning to the screen in a dual role as the twins, Manuel and Esteban.

"Escape to Danger" starring Ann Dvorak and Eric Portman will be shown at the Fayette Theater Saturday. Offering a plot of intrigue, invasion barges, and a great naval trap set for an enemy force, this film combines today's interests with a dynamic story of two people in love. The swiftly placed melodrama travels from occupied Denmark through a thrilling torpedoing at sea into crucial events in London involving a hunted woman's peril.

Buffet Supper Given Friday by Visitor Here

Mrs. John Cunningham was a gracious young hostess Friday evening, when she invited a number of young women to the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Emma B. Palmer, on Sycamore Street, to enjoy the serving of a tempting buffet supper and evening of bridge.

The seasonal viands were served cafeteria style from the dining room table which was centered with miniature crystal baskets of rose buds, flanked by tall burning tapers. An informal hour was spent at small tables arranged about the Palmer home, after which the remainder of the evening was gaily spent in numerous rounds of bridge.

When the scores were tallied late in the evening, Mrs. Donald Lange was awarded first prize. Guests present last evening were Miss Clara Story, Mrs. Jack Hicks, Mrs. Emerson Ludwick, Mrs. Jack Hagerty, Mrs. Dwight Coffman, Mrs. Patti Tolle, Mrs. John Alton and Mrs. Donald Lange.

Mrs. Cunningham and small son have arrived here to visit with Mrs. Palmer for several weeks, and will be joined by Major Cunningham in the near future for a short visit here. They came here from Sioux City, Iowa.

STATE THEATER

A dramatic story destined to keep audiences on the edge of their seats is due Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the State Theater in "The Hour Before Dawn," adapted from the gripping novel by Somerset Maugham. Franchot Tone and Veronica Lake are starred with an admirable cast which included Binnie Barnes, John Sutton, Henry Stephenson and Philip Merivale. The film presents a dramatic struggle between a cold-hearted heroine and her lover, whom she hates even as he pours out his love. Also to be shown at the State Theater will be "Stars on Parade" with Larry Parks, Lynn Merrick, Ray Walker, Jeff Donnell, Robert Williams, Danny O'Neil, The Chords, Frank and Jean Hubert, King Cole Trio and the Ben Carter Choir.

Wednesday and Thursday "Sun-down," starring Jean Tierney, Bruce Cabot and George Sanders in a great adventure movie of today will be shown as part of a double bill at the State Theater. Also to be shown will be Gene Autry in "Tumbling Tumbleweeds."

Friday and Saturday Dick Foran will appear at the State Theater in "Land Beyond the Law," plus chapter two of the "Adventures of the Flying Cadets."

PALACE THEATER

Belita, hailed as the country's outstanding figure skater, and now to be revealed as equally skilled as a dancer will appear at the Palace Theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, opposite James Ellison as the star of the dazzling musical extravaganza "Lady Let's Dance." The supporting cast includes the comedy skating team of Frick and Frack, Walter Catlett, Lucien Littlefield, Maurice St. Clair, Emmet Vogan, Harry Harvey, Jack Rice, Barbara Woodell and Eugene Mike. Music is furnished by the orchestras of Henry Busse, Mitch Ayres, Eddie LeBaron and Lou Brink. Also to be shown will be "The Unknown Guest."

Wednesday and Thursday Margo and Robert Ryan and Amelia Ward will be shown at the Palace Theater in "Gangway for Tomorrow" and second feature to be shown will be "Gunsmoke."

PLANNING BOARD FOR COUNTY TO MEET NEXT WEEK

Eight Members Appointed To Serve With Engineer and Commissioners

Fayette County's much-discussed planning commission will have its first meeting next Friday, County Engineer Robert E. Willis said today.

The commission, which automatically under law includes the county commissioners, Jean S. Nisley, Homer Miller and Thomas Parrett and the county engineers, also has eight appointed members, named by the county commissioners.

And Howard C. Allen, Frank Holden, Willard Perrill, Walter Sollars, Arch O. Riber, Richard Willis, Robert Craig and Colin Campbell were designated by them to serve one, two and three year terms.

"The commission will be concerned only with public works projects," Willis said in outlining the group's purposes, the primary one of which is to provide means to take up the slack in appointment anticipated after the war.

Although the commission is a quasi-legal body, it will have no actual jurisdiction over any projects for the public good or financed by public money. Willis said, adding that the council may make recommendations for such projects to the legal body holding sway over the section of the county or city in which the projects would be situated.

Willis explained the extent of the council does not end with the city limits of Washington C. H., although its name, Fayette County Planning Commission, might indicate otherwise. Half the appointed members are from the city, he pointed out.

Operating funds for the commission, which would cover expenses of engineering talent, may be appropriated by the commissioners from the general fund, Willis said. No funds have been appropriated so far.

While the commission has no legal authority to construct any such public works without first gaining permission of the governing body, it may make a master plan outlining projects throughout a given area, Willis explained. Other organizations wishing to sponsor a project may complete their plans and present it to the commission for approval, he added.

Putting it into different words, the county engineer said: "The commission will push projects of a public works nature."

Funds for these public works may be obtained in any one of several ways, theoretically, Willis said. These are the methods: by local subscription, state aid, federal aid and bond issues, sponsored by the commission. "Each project must be financed on its own merit, however," he emphasized.

FATE OF ROME UP TO NAZIS AS YANKS DRIVE FOE NEARER ETERNAL CITY

The French closed in quickly from the south on Colle Ferro, four and a half miles southeast of Valmontone and within pistol shot of both Highway Six and the river.

Farther to the southeast other French troops closed the retreat route from the area south of the Sacco River by slicing across a secondary road at Sgurgola, 14 miles from Valmontone and five and a half miles west of Ferentino, which the Eighth Army already had taken.

Gen. Alphonse Juin's French troops also were driving northward from the village of Montelanico, 11 miles southwest of Valmontone. Montelanico was taken the night of June 1.

Trap Closes On Nazis

Thus iron claws were closing in on whatever German units were attempting to fight a rearguard action in the 13-mile sector between Colle Ferro and Ferentino, looping south of the Sacco River.

From this bag the Nazis had four unsurfaced country roads extending northward, along which they could attempt to escape, but close pursuit from three sides was certain to cost them heavy casualties as well as the loss of all but their most highly mobile vehicles.

Americans exploiting their breakthrough into the German defenses hinged on the Alban hills captured 2,000-foot Monte Castellano, six and a half miles west of Valmontone and the same distance north of Velletri.

L. W. YOUNG VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK

Death Comes To Aged Farmer At Home Friday Night

Following an illness of several months due to a heart affliction and complications, death came to L. W. Young at his home at 1022 Dayton Avenue Friday night at 9:30.

The deceased, a substantial and respected farmer, was 78 years of age last April and since moving to this city from a home on the Deiber farm four miles southeast of Washington C. H., about a year ago, has been employed part time at the Ladoga Canning Company's plant here.

Mr. Young is survived by his wife and three children, two daughters, Mrs. Opal Severs of Dayton and Mrs. Mabel Duneck of Chicago, and one son, Pvt. Harold Young, now stationed with the U. S. Army at Camp Maxey, near Paris, Texas. The son recently had written to his parents that he was expecting a furlough to enable him to come home to see them next week.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed and are in charge of the Littleton Funeral Home at Sabina. According to present plans it is expected that the funeral will be held on Tuesday, June 6, at the home on Dayton Avenue, at 2 P. M.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR JOYCE ANN REED

Funeral services for Joyce Ann Reed, six months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Reed, were held at the residence, 1155 Rawlings Street, Friday at 2 P. M.

Rev. H. B. Twining, pastor of the First Baptist Church, in charge of the services, read the Scripture, offered prayer and delivered the sermon. Mrs. Harold Aylshire read the memoir and Mr. and Mrs. Laris Hard sang the two hymns, "Jewels" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

The many flowers were cared for by Shirley Stinson and Marcella Lee Huff.

Burial was made in the family lot of the Washington C. H. Cemetery. Pallbearers were Myrtle Pinkerton, Dorothy Kirker, Edith Knisley and Mamie Shackleford. The funeral was under the direction of the Klever Funeral Home.

in prisoners alone in the past 24 hours in repeated counter-attacks, vainly attempting to halt the Americans from widening the gap in their frontal defenses and advancing in the strongly-held Lanuvio area.

A dispatch from Berlin to the Morgenthauingen said today the Pyrenees border between France and Spain has been heavily fortified by the Germans in an extension of the Atlantic wall linking up with Mediterranean defense. The story was attributed to "the front correspondent of a small German newspaper."

Air Attacks Continue

U. S. heavy bombers struck twice at Nazi coastal fortifications in the Pas-De-Calais and Boulogne areas of France today, carrying on the non-stop aerial assault of Europe now under intensified pressure after the shuttle raid to Russian bases.

Flying two missions from Britain for the second day, a force of 250 Flying Fortresses and Liberators with equally strong escort hit coastal emplacements in the morning, and similar fleets roared back in the afternoon to the same area.

These west wall fortifications were hit Friday in their heaviest

BARRIERS TAKEN FROM OVER OLD FIRE CISTERN

Traffic To Pack Fills Made In Eliminating Death Trap Under Street

Following removal of a quantity of earth from the three openings of the old fire cistern at the intersection of Fayette and Court Street, which was filled a short time ago, the earth was replaced and securely tamped, Saturday forenoon, so the barriers could be removed and traffic allowed to pass over the fills.

It was found that the heavy clay with which the cistern was filled, had settled only a few inches, and by reason of the fact that most of the clay was tamped securely when it was placed in the big cavern, it is believed that traffic can now pass over the fills in safety.

The barriers were removed after the additional work was done Saturday, and a real traffic hazard at that point was thus eliminated, as several near accidents have occurred at the intersection since the barriers were placed in position.

It is expected that traffic will cause the fills to settle for some time, but additional material will be added as needed, and when the settling ceases, the openings cut through the paving and top of the cistern will be filled.

Filling the cistern removes a dangerous death trap that has lurked under the street for a great many years.

FORMER RESIDENT SUMMONED FRIDAY

Mrs. Cecil A. Cline Dies in Blanchester

Mrs. Cecil A. Cline, formerly of Washington C. H., died Friday at 3:30 P. M. at her home in Blanchester, where she has resided for a number of years.

Mrs. Cline, who was a daughter of C. R. and Elizabeth Parrett of Washington C. H., had been in failing health for a number of years.

The Cline family moved from this city many years ago, and was located in Cincinnati for sometime before moving to Blanchester.

Surviving are her husband, one daughter, Miss Julia, and one brother, Charles H. Parrett, the latter of this city, and many other relatives.

Funeral services and burial will take place at Blanchester, the arrangements to be announced later.

daylight pounding of the war, and 500 RAF bombers attacked the west wall defenses and crumbling German rail facilities last night.

The daylight attacks sent the air offensive into its 16th day.

The dramatic arrival of U. S. bombers and fighters at secretly-prepared U. S. bases in Russia yesterday disclosed that the first west-east shuttle bombing bringing far-flung portions of the Nazi domain under precision bombing had been accomplished. The operation, carried out by a large force of strategic bombers and fighters from Italy against Romanian targets selected by Russia, established joint offensive operations with the Red air force. The planes were serviced at the Russian bases for another attack on Axis targets en route back to their starting bases.

Allied planes from Britain again attacked Hitler's western wall today carrying the current aerial offensive into its sixteenth day. More than 500 RAF bombers attacked west wall defenses and rail facilities last night.

Marshal Tito's forces, striking at the enemy base of Mirna Peca in Slovenia, chased out the Nazi garrison, then routed two columns of Germans sent to the Garison's aid, a communique broadcast from Tito's headquarters said.

Greek Guerrillas have blown up a bridge on the Istanbul-Sofia railway, a vital link between Turkey and the Balkans, passengers arriving at Istanbul reported. The bridge is on Bulgarian territory.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Fayette County Boys With Armed Forces

Mr. and Mrs. Allen White, South Main Street, received word Saturday morning from their son, Lt. Jack White telling of his safe arrival in North Africa.

OPERETTA GIVEN IN AUDITORIUM FRIDAY NIGHT

WHS Junior Dramatics Club Presents 'Hansel and Gretel'

The Starlets, WHS junior dramatic club, may be just starting out in their teens, but their presentation of "Hansel and Gretel," musical presentation of the time-honored fairy tale, hit the target, when it was given Friday night in the high school auditorium.

Costumed traditionally and playing through the three sets—Hansel and Gretel's home, the black forest and the witch's home complete with gingerbread men and peppermint sticks—the cast showed ability to take direction as well as dramatic talent in the first production of the club.

The principals acted and sang their way through the story with true characterizations. Sally Streater and Don Denton portrayed the bewildered Gretel and Hansel; Laura Lee Enslin, their vindictive mother; Charles Orr, the loving father and Mary Evelyn Twining the wicked, menacing witch.

Sandmen, dewmen and witches capered through their parts and the angel pantomime, which followed the familiar prayer, drew plaudits of the audience. Backstage choruses provided background music while the leading characters shouldered the solo parts.

Lucinda Harper, president of the club, announced the cast before she assumed her role as one of the two accompanists. Roberta Sexton was the other accompanist.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Brown directed the music and Miss Rosalyn Wilson supervised the dramatic facets of the production. Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood played excerpts from the Humperdinck's operetta music before the operetta began and between acts.

PLANT NOW for Victory

If you haven't started your Victory Garden, start it without further delay. It isn't too late—even though some others may have a few days head start on you. And it doesn't matter whether it's big or little. A tiny plat of ground can produce salad makings all summer with little care. Plant now. Preserve the surplus. Share with your neighbor.
